

LOUIS BENNISON STARS IN "SANDY BURKE OF THE U-BAR-U"

Established as a favorite screen star by his brilliant performance in "Oh, Johnny," Louis Bennison comes to the Empress theatre on Friday and Saturday in his second Betzwood picture, "Sandy Burke of the U-Bar-U," a vehicles certain to take rank with the smiling star's famous stage triumph, "Johnny Get Your Gun."

Sandy Burke, (Louis Bennison,) always eager for adventure wends his way into a thriving community in the Western cattle country. He enters the Silver Dollar saloon in time to see Joe Morgan, a ne'er-do-well, breathing his last from a shot fired by Jim Diggs, a burly bad man, who greets Sandy with a volley. Burke drops to the floor, feigning he is hit, but in a flash has Diggs covered with his own gun as the dead man's daughter enters the place in search of him.

Sandy adopts the child and brings her to the widow Mackey's home. Determined to stay with the child, Sandy goes out in search of work. He is hired by Jeff Kirby, a wealthy rancher, to stop the depredations of an organized band of cattle thieves. He falls in love with his employer's daughter, Molly, but his ardent wooing proves unavailing until he rounds up the crooks, his sleuthing operations leading him into one thrilling situation after another. His is a fight against overwhelming odds at every turn but his indomitable courage triumphs in the end.

FURTHER CONFERENCE BEING CONTEMPLATED BETWEEN PROVINCES

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—A further conference between the Dominion and the provinces on the question of the handing over of the federal authorities of the natural resources is in contemplation. The question is one of long standing, and was dealt with without definite result at a conference held here some time ago. At that conference the western provinces held that they were not only entitled to the control of their resources, but also to the money subsidies which they have been receiving in lieu of them, the contention being that so much of the resources have been distributed by the federal government that the provinces are entitled to an amount in proportion.

The Dominion government declined to take action until such time as the provinces came to an agreement. The subject has met the premier on his way west, and strong representations have been made to have the matter speedily settled. So a new conference is in contemplation.—Calgary Herald.

LIVE STOCK PRODUCE AS AN EXPORT FACTOR

Nine people in ten would offhand probably say that Canada exports more wheat than wheat than it does of livestock produce. Yet it is not so. The balance is slightly in favor of produce obtained direct from farm animals. But the export of wheat flour tips the scale the other way.

Nothing can better help in estimating the importance of the livestock industry than seeing its relative stand among the factors which make up national prosperity. In one striking way the extension of livestock is of more value than the extension of wheat fields. It is more stable and permanent; it does not land itself so readily to farm gambling or "mining" in wheat.

The following figures of export values, for the year ending September last, supplied by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, prove the importance of the produce from farm animals:

Exports of live animals $41,710,000; exports of hides and skins $15,813,000; exports of leather (hide value) $5,000,000; exports of meats, bacon and ham $41,969,000; beef $15,837,000; canned meats $476,000; pork $1,213,000; other meats $3,400,000; exports of other articles obtained from farm animals; butter $10,068,000; cheese $39,522,000; milk and cream 10,923,000; total $185,931,000.

Value of exported wheat $182,753,000; value of exported flour $60,525,000; total $243,278,000.

Thus the proportion of direct animal products to wheat and flour in Canadian exports is as three is to four.

SOLDIERS CAN GET REFUND OF PASSAGE MONEY

Many inquiries are being constantly made with regard to the question of refund of passage money to Canadians who went to England on their own account during the war and enlisted there in the Imperial army, serving with the Imperials in some theatre of war. Provision was made whereby such men, or nursing sisters, if they were eligible, could, by making application, obtain such refund.

This privilege expired, however, on August 31, 1919, but R. Gallacher, provincial secretary of the G. W. V. A. in Alberta informs The Herald that certain extensions have been granted in the matter of the time limit for submission of claims.

Time Limit Extended
Originally the refund was only made to a Canadian who had enlisted within two months of his arrival in England, and no refund was made when passage had been already paid by employers of patriotic associations. The time limit for submission of claims is now December 31, 1920, and only soldiers who came under certain classifications are allowed to make such a claim.

Those who are affected by the extension, that is, who may still claim a refund, are: (1) Those who were actually engaged in military operations in distant parts of the world, and in places other than France, Belgium or the area of the Rhine army. (2) Those who were incapacitated by wounds or illness contracted on active service. (3) Relatives of those who were killed in action or who died as the results of wounds or war service. Each claim now submitted must be accompanied by a full statement explaining how it was not put in before the expiration of the time allowed for such claims and must be sent to the secretary, War Office, London, England.—Calgary Herald.

PRESENTATION TO WALLACE STEWART

On Saturday last the members of the Hudson's Bay Staff corralled Wallace Stewart in a corner of the big store and made an impromptu presentation to him of a fine pair of Coon gauntlets, and a nice little speech of appreciation of mutual pleasant relations, etc.

Mr. Stewart is widely and favorably known in Macleod and district, having presided as the efficient manager of the Hudson's Bay hardware store here for the past nine years. Mr. Stewart handed in his resignation to the Bay some time ago, but carried on as a matter of obligation to the company till Saturday evening last, on Monday commencing his duties as hardware manager for the W. G. Andrews Hardware Store, to which concern doubtless his business acquaintance and experience in the hardware line will prove a gratifying asset.

EXPLORER HAS GREAT FAITH IN THE FAR NORTH

WINNIPEG, Nov. 8.—Matters in connection with the proposed formation of the Hudson Bay Reindeer Company will be discussed by Vilhjelm Stefansson, the Arctic explorer with the directors during his stay in Winnipeg.

Mr. Stefansson, who with his companion for 19 years in the Arctic, S. T. Stokerson, is visiting Winnipeg, in the course of an interview today says he had tried hard to get the Dominion government to take up his scheme for the domestication of musk ox and reindeer. While they were very interested in the project they were afraid the people would not support it, and his hopes were now centered in private development.

The main significance of the discoveries at Fort Norman of oil, said Mr. Stefansson was the development of the country itself. The difficulties of transportation in the north country were very much exaggerated and human ingenuity was such that they would all be surmounted in time.

"In 10 years time from now that oil will probably be consumed locally," the speaker asserted.

Mr. Stefansson referred to the presence 300 miles northeasterly of the Fort Norman oil field, of a large copper belt at present too remote for proper working, but which would be available when the country was developed.—Lethbridge Herald.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS MEET AT LETHBRIDGE NOV. 18

Miss Olive Ziegler, National Girls' work secretary of the Methodist church in Canada will be one of the leaders at the Religious Education convention to be held at Lethbridge, November 18-19. Miss Ziegler has the reputation of being one of the most successful Girls' Workers in Canada, having for many years been in this work for the Y.W.C.A. She is able to speak out of a large experience and bring much help and inspiration to her fellow workers. The opportunity to ask the advice of such a leader at the discussion periods will be appreciated by leaders who have problems to solve in their girls' work.

Rev. E. R. McLean, Presbyterian Field secretary for Sunday school work, may be expected to bring messages of real value to the workers attending the convention. Mr. McLean will deal especially with the Primary and Junior Department work and will also devote a special session to the work among young people and in adult Bible classes. A convention of this kind gives an opportunity to all workers to learn of the most successful methods being used in other fields and to discuss their problems with other workers and expert leaders.

As already announced Mr. Wallace Forgie, the secretary of the Boys' Work Board of Alberta will present special features of the Boys' Work programs now being used throughout Canada.

The meetings of the convention will be held in Wesley Methodist church. The committee in charge of arrangements are prepared to provide billets for all delegates from outside points. Registrations and requests for information should be sent to Mr. E. L. Potley, c/o Y.M.C.A., Lethbridge. Those planning to attend are requested to notify the committee as early as possible. There are no registration or other fees connected with the convention.

MURDERER HAS CONFESSED TO KILLING WIFE

REGINA, Sask., Nov. 4.—John Kobitz, Maple Creek, arrested in the early part of the week on suspicion of having murdered his wife, Rosie, today confessed to the crime and is now taking the provincial police to the spot where he buried the body, according to a wire received this morning by Commissioner Mahoney, from Inspector Stewart of the Swift Current division. Details of the alleged confession have not yet been received here.—Calgary Herald.

METHODIST CHURCH ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Rev. W. A. Smith, B.A., of Calgary, president of the Alberta Conference, will preach both morning and evening in the Methodist church on Sunday, the 14th.

This is the 44th anniversary of the church. Its history dates back to the time when the town was located on Gallagher's Island, when Rev. John McLean was missionary to the Blood Indians, and even before that Rev. Henry Manning represented the Methodist church in scouting among the ranchers of Southern Alberta, including territory now covered by Pincher Creek, Granum and Stand Off.

The services on Sunday promise to be of a most interesting character. Mr. Smith is one of Calgary's leading preachers and is sure to have a message in harmony with the spiritual needs of the day.

The choir will have special music to help give inspiration to the services.—Rev. W. A. Lewis, B.A., Pastor.

N. Y. PAPER OPPOSED TO PROPOSED WHEAT EMBARGO

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(By Canadian Press.)—The movement on foot in the United States to have an embargo placed on Canadian wheat imports as a medium of increasing the domestic price of wheat received adverse comment in the World Thursday morning. The newspaper says:

"It must be assumed that in appealing to Washington for an embargo on imports of wheat from Canada, the Chicago Board of Trade is animated by the purely altruistic purpose of helping the growers of Kansas and round-about to corner wheat and boost a farm price and profit rather than of helping itself to an old-time corner for the benefit of its own crowd."

"Nevertheless, the utter futility of this embargo effort ought to be as apparent to the Kansas farmer as it must be to the Chicago speculator. This country is still a producer of wheat beyond its own needs. The price is accordingly fixed not at home but in the outside markets where the exportable surplus goes. Canada has this year grown a wheat crop so large as to leave over 100,000,000 bushels for export and this surplus will directly or indirectly fall upon the Liverpool wheat market and affect the price for United States as well as Canada just as certainly whether it is first sold in the United States or first sent to Europe."

Such an embargo as is asked for can have no more effect in raising the Kansas or Chicago price of wheat than the damming up of Behring Strait could raise or lower the depth of the Arctic or Pacific ocean.

The Federal Trade Commission is solemnly at work on statistics on Canadian wheat imports in response to the embargo appeals of the Chicago Board of Trade. The commission should be able to find more useful ways of employing its time.—Lethbridge Herald.

RED CROSS DRIVE

During the forthcoming winter, the problem of the Red Cross, in whose behalf an appeal will be made on Armistice day in Alberta, in common with every other portion of the British Empire, will be to take care of from 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 children in the war-stricken areas of Europe. For this purpose according to a statement made by Herbert Hoover, when the Canadian appeal in behalf of the British Empire Fund was launched in Toronto, a total of $4,000,000 a month is required from all the nations in the league of the Red Cross Societies. "Surely," said Mr. Hoover, on that occasion, "it is not much for the whole world to find."

"To me, the greatest problem of the human heart in the world today, is the problem of a myriad waifs and orphans, hungry children throughout eastern and central Europe. The slaughter of fifteen millions of men could not but have left millions of helpless waifs and orphan children in its track, and upon their well-being must depend the upbuilding of Europe. All of the great Allied countries are in the main able to take care of their own, and the most poignant problem of the whole world lies in that area from Finland through Western Latvia and Lithuania, Poland, Germany, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, a little in Rumania and Serbia. In many countries it is a triple problem, it is a problem of famine in food needed for children and it is a problem in family destruction, and it is a problem in destitution beyond the ability

WINNIPEG MAYOR AND PARTY HAVE NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

THE PAS, Man., Nov. 4.—Going at the rate of 35 miles an hour, a gas car on the Hudson Bay Railway, carrying mayor Grey, of Winnipeg, and four others, ran into a spread rail, on Tuesday, throwing the occupants in all directions. Severely bruised about the head and body the party arrived here last night with the account of their mishap. Professor Delury of Manitoba university found his spectacles hanging to a limb of a tree, 20 yards from where he lay. Joseph Myers, W. H. Makewer, and John Wanless were the other passengers and they say it was providential that all escaped with their lives.—Calgary Herald.

SCOTLAND GOES DRY IN SPOTS

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Scotland has, in effect, decided to apply prohibition in spots, upon which the general English comment is this: "It may send drunkards across municipal boundaries for their refreshment, but it won't get rid of them."

Glasgow is a special disappointment to the dries. They had counted on twelve prohibition wards and only got four. The net effect is that 34 Glasgow licenses out of 1604 will be cancelled. Similar Scottish areas have gone dry in the proportion of about one-third. All of the eleven wards in Aberdeen voted for no change. It was at Aberdeen that the dries issued an appeal containing these words: "Jesus Christ will sit over against the ballot box today." Sandwichmen paraded Aberdeen streets with placards reading "Hell is the well of whiskey." Soon afterwards the wets had sandwichmen in the streets with the report, "O death, where is thy sting?"

Parliament is concerned at the moment with the question of Sunday hours within which the working man may get his glass of beer. Hours are now from 6 to 9 o'clock. There is an outcry for an extension to 10 o'clock. The cabinet is expected to set up a series of commissions throughout the country, with power to regulate the hours according to local conditions, but no one expects a return to pre-war hours.

Meanwhile champagne is experiencing a bad slump at hotels and restaurants. The price frightens all but the most prosperous of profiteers, and the most spendthrift of young men, and the pinch of harder times is greatly reducing the number of both.—Calgary Herald.

of the state to find remedy. Although the misery of the people of Italy and France has been of no moderate degree, they have yet found something for eastern and central Europe. Through the existing organizations we have a common funnel through which we can pour support without waste and without duplication. We have found by experience that the cost of caring for a waif child is approximately three dollars a month, that of the supplies that are required by imports, about one dollar is needed, and therefore, together with the local support—local governments, local municipalities, local libraries and local services, practically preserves the life of one child."

The appeal in Calgary will be made through the local branch of the Society, which is now organized for the campaign on Armistice Day and the period following. In all parts of the province, local branches will raise funds. Contributions may be made either to the local branches or to the Alberta Division, which is situated in the O'Sullivan block, 207-7th Ave. East.

The campaign to be launched by the Alberta Division of the Canadian Red Cross on Armistice Day, Nov. 11th, will be the first appeal for support made to the people of this province since the signing of the Armistice two years ago. Since that date the Red Cross has been reorganized for Peace work, and in Alberta has greatly extended its activities. It has brought nursing and hospital services to the outlying portions of Alberta, has in a score of ways assisted returned soldiers and their families in sickness and distress, has taken over children's homes at Calgary and Edmonton, has given supplies and equipment to eight rural hospitals, has equipped a recreation hut at Strathcona hospital, Edmonton, has issued supplies to military and S.C.R. hospitals, has organized about forty junior branches with a membership which now approaches one thousand and has carried on many other activities of a beneficent character. It was through the Red Cross that 1007 families in the drought stricken areas of Alberta received articles of clothing in the winter of 1919-20 valued at more than $30,000 and nearly 10,000 second-hand garments donated by the Society.

The Alberta Division is now temporarily hampered by lack of funds. It is appealing to the people of Alberta to subscribe $100,000 for the continuance of its work in this province, and at the same time seeks to raise funds for European relief.

KEEN INTEREST IN HIGH CLASS PROVINCIAL BONDS

Tenders were opened at noon Monday, November 1st, at the office of the Provincial Treasurer for One Million Dollar issue of 6% 10 year Telephone bonds which were advertised for on October 20th last.

Eighteen bids, some representing as many as four different bond houses, were received in all, evidencing the keen interest taken in the high class bonds of this province. The highest tender was filed by Harris Forbes and Company and the National City Company, their bid being 100,523 and accrued interest. The bonds were consequently awarded to that firm. Since the bonds brought a premium of six per cent. rate is therefore reduced to a basis of 5.92.

The next highest tender was that of Wood Gundy and Company, Toronto, who bid 99.92. Five of the bids exceeded 99, and nine were above 98.

Most of the financial houses had representatives on the ground and Hon. C. R. Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer, was the recipient of many congratulations from those present, not only on the splendid price received, but on the careful and efficient manner in which preparations had been made for the sale and prompt delivery of the bonds.

This is the highest price received by the province since the year 1915, being some four points higher than the sale of the $2,000,000 issue of identical bonds made last August.

The general opinion expressed by the bond men present was that this is the best sale made in years by any of the provinces of Canada.

The Provincial Treasurer announces that this sale will not interfere with the 6% 10 year domestic bond issue or the sale of Alberta 5% Demand Saving Certificates, which will continue to be sold as formerly at par.

VANCOUVER WILL START COAL BUSINESS WITH ALBERTA COAL

VANCOUVER, Nov. 9.—Having made a tentative contract, and arrangements for a monthly supply of 10,000 tons of Blackstone company's coal from Lovettville, Alberta, mayor R. H. Gale today urged the city council to start a coal business as a municipal utility. Present dealer's prices range close to $16 but the mayor's contract advantages enable him, he said, to supply coal at $11.70 for first class screened lump, or $10.45 for the run of the mine.

Vancouver's city engineer personally investigated the Blackstone company's seven coal areas on the C.N.R., early last month. His reports stated the twenty million tons of first class coal were in sight, with many more millions under survey. Its operation was wonderfully easy because the coal stood in huge piles, permitting removal by stripping the surface and with a steam shovel can be loaded direct to the railway cars in some instances.

The activity for a civic coal yard resulted from the inability of the Vancouver island collieries to give a supply for civic institutions. From this city to the mines, the distance is 876 miles, on which the C.N.R. gave a rate of $3.90 per ton but negotiations are under way to have this reduced to $3.50 which will make a still greater reduction of forty cents to the consumer. The city engineer's proposals include a $25,000 initial capital expenditure, with all costs of civic handling figured at $2.80 per ton. A local cartage concern has bid a blanket rate of $1.20 per ton for auto truck deliveries anywhere within the city limits.—Calgary Herald.

A CLERGYMAN'S WIFE WANTS WOMEN TO KNOW ADVANTAGES OF INTERNAL BATHING

If women could only see the thousands of letters Dr. Tyrrell has received from grateful women in all parts of the world thanking him for his wonderful invention for Internal Bathing they would soon discard the medicine bottle and look to the real cause of their trouble. 95 per cent. of all human ills are due to accumulated waste in the Colon, or large lower intestine. Warm water, properly used with the J. B. L. Cascade, will relieve the cause of your troubles, and perfect health will follow.

A Winnipeg clergyman writes: "My wife is naturally sensitive having her name appear in public print, yet is anxious that others should know what the J.B.L. Cascade has done for her. It has really given her a new lease of life. For years she had been doctoring for Constipation, which became worse each year. Since using the J. B. L. Cascade, first about four years ago, she has not been sick a day, and has become robust and strong again. Should any person wish this letter confirmed, you are at liberty to give my name in private."

The J.B.L. Cascade is shown and explained at A. D. Ferguson's, Drugist, Macleod, Alberta. The J.B.L. Cascade is an invention perfected by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York and has done more during the past few years to restore health and lessen disease than all other means combined. Ask for booklet explaining all about Internal Bathing and what it has done for others. It is free, or write to Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute 163 College Street, Toronto.

L. (Dad) Bubser died at Lethbridge general hospital on Saturday night last following a protracted illness from cancer of the stomach. Deceased was seventy years of age and had been in failing health for the past year. The funeral occurred at Lethbridge on Monday last.

On Friday evening, Nov. 5th, an attempt was made to burglarize W. G. Andrews' hardware store. Mr. Andrews turned out the lights at six o'clock, locking the store as usual and went to supper. At 8.15 he had occasion to visit the store and on opening the door heard someone moving about, turning on the lights he saw a man rushing toward the back door, through which he escaped. On looking the premises over Mr. Andrews found a number of guns, one loaded, and ammunition laid on the counters, also pocket knives, razors and silverware in great quantities as if in readiness for removal. The till had been robbed of about five dollars in silver, and it is possible some stock may have been taken. The burglar entered by breaking a back window and conducted his operation inside by the light from a street lamp. A strange dog was found lurking in the store, but it is considered possible that the animal may have followed Mr. Andrews in. The thief is still at large, but local officers of the law believe they have him located.

"THE SPITE BRIDE"

"The Spite Bride," a Selznick picture starring Olive Thomas, which will be seen next Wednesday and Thursday at the Empress theatre, is a drama of youthful impulse, full of thrills, tears, smiles, love and adventure.

Never was this charming star so alluring, vivacious and utterly captivating; never was she cast in a better role than that of Tessa Doyle, the shy little dancing girl, who was innocent of the tricks this sordid world plays on the back-stage girl, especially if it knows that she is innocent. It was directed by Charles Giblyn and the leading man is Robert Ellis, who scored a hit in "Upstairs and Down."

When Millicent Lee jilted Billy Swayne he thought that the world had come to an end. He decided that life was not worth living until he met his chum, Rodney Dolson, who was an optimist of the first order with a ready smile and willing hand for every friend. His advice to Billy was that he should immediately marry someone else and get his publicity in first. It don't make very much difference who the girl was, because he could pay her a couple of thousand and send her to Reno in a few weeks.

When Billy, after several drinks, agreed, the search for a bride began. They went to a show, saw Dennis and Doyle, and decided on the young lady then on duty. A note was sent to the girls and they met the young men in a neighboring restaurant. The proposition was made and Trixie Dennis accepted the name of Tessa Doyle, the shy little thing who was her dancing partner. Tessa could not combat the strong will which coerced her and she was married to Billy Swayne, a scion of one of New York's oldest families.

Later, when Trix sees the splendor of Billy's house, she tries to hold him up for ten thousand dollars. Billy refuses to be blackmailed and the youths abduct the girls and take them aboard Billy's seagoing yacht. The yacht catches fire and the entire party is forced to abandon it. After being in the lifeboat for many hours they are picked up by a tramp steamer going to Cuba. The captain of the steamer falls in love with Tessa and being sceptical of the story that she tells, gives her a card to his mother to use in case she would ever need a friend. This card more than a year later is found in Tessa's purse after she has been struck down by a truck. And at the hospital they call up Captain Peter's mother and bring her to Tessa's bedside.

Here she again meets Peter, who tries to make her love him. She tells him that this is impossible, as she loves the man who married her, but whom she has not seen in more than a year. Tessa, during her convalescence, has learned typing, and now through the aid of a friend, she gets a position as secretary to Countess di Raspoli, who has come to help with the war relief work. At a bazaar Tessa sees Billy's mother.

Much adventure and many tears which finally melt into smiles are Tessa's share from now on. The picture is delightfully human and is warranted to hold the interest of the most blasé fan.

OVERLAND 4 ECONOMY

The outstanding factor in the economical operation of Overland 4 is its light weight. The three-point Cantilever spring suspension contributes measurably to economy by relieving the mechanism of road shocks and by reducing tire wear, but light weight assures both low gasoline consumption and high tire mileage. These facts have been strikingly proved in every test to which the car has been subjected.

Light weight, simplicity of design, and accessibility of parts combine to make Overland 4 a conspicuous example of car economy. The ease with which the necessary repairs and adjustments are made saves time and money to the car owner, yet the accessibility of Overland 4 is "protected accessibility." Clutch, transmission and universal joint are encased with the motor in one unit, and lubricated from a single oil supply. Oil and water pumps with attendant complications have been eliminated. The oil is circulated by pressure automatically created, and the water circulates naturally by the thermo-siphon system. Alex. McDonald, local agent.

RESOLUTION OF PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD OF ALBERTA, RE PROHIBITION

(Published by Request.)

Whereas the General assembly of the Presbyterian church in Canada has repeatedly and unanimously pronounced in favor of the total prohibition of the manufacture, importation and sale of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes, and has laid it upon its people to do all in their power to end the drink traffic;

And whereas the recent prohibition campaign in Alberta to forbid the importation into the province of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes was in conformity with the assembly's declarations and was actively participated in by the Presbyterian body in Alberta:

And whereas despite many heavy handicaps a majority approximating 20,000 has been polled in favor of the said prohibition:

And whereas already in certain quarters and by certain persons a subtle and persistent effort is being made to disparage the vote cast and to thwart the will of the people as democratically expressed at the polls:

Therefore be it resolved:

1. That this Synod declare emphatically that in its judgment the vote polled and the majority given is a clear indication that the will of the people is for the prohibition and not for the Government control of the Liquor traffic;

2. That it call upon the government in the light of this mandate to make such amendments to the present Liquor Act as will through efficient administration lead to the removal of abuses such for example as are apparent in connection with the issuing of medical prescriptions;

3. That it warn its people to be vigilant and take such measures as will bring defeat to the plans of any persons or parties who may seek to undermine the Prohibition sentiment in the province or subvert the present prohibition legislation;

4. That it pledge itself to co-operate with all other organizations that united with it in achieving the victory of October 25th in resisting any invasion of the registered will of the people;

5. That this resolution be read to all congregations of the Synod, and that copies of it be sent to the premier, the Attorney general, to all the organizations referred to in the preceding paragraph and to all the newspapers in the province.

BOYS' WORK TO BE FEATURE AT LETHBRIDGE CONFERENCE

These are the days of great and growing interest in boy life and boy's work. Churches, rotary and Kiwanis clubs, Chambers of Commerce and other organizations have caught a new vision of the importance and possibilities of the boys. It is a significant and encouraging fact that it is the men's clubs which are concerning themselves about the programs of boy's work being carried on in their communities.

The province of Alberta is fortunate in having recently secured the services of Wallace Forgie, one of the most experienced boys work men in Canada, as the secretary of the Boy's Work Board. Mr. Forgie gained his experience in the Y.M.C.A., having been Boy's Work secretary of the Ottawa and Toronto Central Associations and Travelling secretary in the Ontario and Quebec field. He is now giving his entire time to the promotion of boy's work and community organizations.

At the session of the Religious Education conference, to be held at Lethbridge, November 18-19, boy's work will be given a large place. The various phases of this important subject will be presented and discussed. A special conference of leaders will be held at a supper Thursday evening, November 18th.

Every mens organization and all leaders of the boys classes should plan to attend this important conference in order to learn of the programs being followed and the progress being made in this important field. The provincial leader is anxious to meet every man who is interested in boy's work and is ready to make his services available in any community, where men are facing their obligation toward growing boy life.

The sessions of the conference will deal with the work for children in the beginners, primary and junior departments of the Sunday school work for boys and girls, young people's and adult department work. All interested in the highest welfare of the young are urged to attend.

A MEATLESS HOT PIE

Another Use Discovered For These Oxo Cubes.

Here is a recipe calling for no meat other than the concentrated beef goodness to be found in the familiar Oxo cube.

Peel and slice sufficient potatoes to half fill a large pie dish, add few small onions, also sliced. Put into cold water, bring quickly to a boil, boil one minute, then drain.

Put back in pie dish with few slices of tomato, season with pepper and salt and flavour with herbs. Dissolve one Oxo cube in 1 pint of hot milk and pour over mixture. Put few bits of butter on top and bake for two hours in moderate oven. It's delicious.

All dealers sell Oxo in tins of four, ten, and fifty cubes.

SHADOW OF OPIUM LOOMS AGAIN OVER CHINA

That question today is foremost in the minds of the president of China, Hsu Shih-Chang, and the directors of the International Anti-Opium Association at Peking. According to official reports China is today being flooded with opium and drugs derived from it. The cultivation of the poppy from which opium is made was prohibited by law in China years ago, and for a long time it virtually had disappeared from the fields in which it had been the principle crop. Then came the Japanese ascendancy in China, later the World War, upsetting the established order of things everywhere. And on the wave of unsettled conditions opium came back.

The story of the revival of the opium traffic is a long and sordid one. The International Anti-Opium association goes into it very exhaustively in its latest report. It utilizes an entire 10-page section of a recent issue of the Peking and Tientsin Times for the publication of its findings. It has the moral backing of the Chinese president, but whether his influence will carry any weight against that of greedy and conscienceless provincial officials and scheming foreigners remains to be seen.

Appeal to Other Countries

Strong appeals have been made to other countries. These appeals have met with a ready and agreeable response officially and privately, with the vast majority. But the response has been mostly passive. While no country officially sanctions the importation of narcotics into China, the fact remains, proved by documentary evidence, that the manufacture of opium products is increasing in most countries, that their use in China is growing by leaps and bounds.

Although the importation of opium or its products into China has been forbidden by international treaty since 1917, hundreds of tons cross the frontiers each year.

There are no figures available, says the report of the International Anti-Opium Association, to show just how much raw opium enters China every year, but it is estimated that no less than thirty tons of morphia alone found its way into the country in 1919. One-eighth of a grain is an average dose and it is a matter of simple arithmetic to calculate the number of doses in thirty tons, with seven thousand grains to the pound.

All morphia and other narcotics derived from opium are supposedly manufactured for medicinal purposes. Their use is regulated as far as possible by stringent laws. But there is nothing to prevent their export—presumably for medicinal purposes. This is true in the United States, but the manufacture far exceeds the legitimate demand and is increasing. That means that export trade is growing.

Japan is the only country that imports morphia in any considerable quantities and at the same time Japanese chemists are manufacturing more morphia than the legitimate demands of the country call for. China manufactures practically no morphia or other opium products and yet there is a continuous flood of manufactured narcotics from one end of the country to the other. The answer is obvious.

Then again, the laws of the United States permit the import of raw opium under certain legal restrictions, but not its export. There is no law, however, to prevent raw opium being shipped through the country in bond. Foreign dealers can get all the opium they want from India and Sumatra. They ship it as exports to their agents in New York. When it reaches New York the agent discovers suddenly and before he pays a cent of duties that he has no market in the United States for his imports. So he obtains permission to re-export it to Japan. The packages are shipped in bond to San Francisco and loaded on a boat for Japan. The only interest the United States takes in the transaction is to see that the packages are not opened while they are in transit through the country.

Records Lost in Shuffle

A large part of such shipments is transferred from boat to boat when it reaches a Japanese harbor and most of it eventually enters China without the Japanese government having any record whatever of its existence.

The revival of poppy growing in China has been cited as a matter of news by writers of the Orient for several years. Poppy cultivation is strictly banned by law, but provincial governors demand revenues and no other crop gives as large returns as poppy. Consequently, they issue proclamations that certain areas must be planted to poppy and, in many instances, they send the seed into the district with planting instructions. Failure to obey this proclamation meets with severe punishment, even death in some instances. On the other hand, compliance means breaking the national law and subjects the farmer to fine and punishment—far less severe, of course, than that meted out for disobedience to the local proclamation. Under the circumstances there is no alternative course open to the farmer. He must raise poppy regardless of his personal feelings in the matter.

Aided by Revolutions

Meantime, the national government is harassed by civil war and Peking has little control over the local acts of provincial rulers, many of whom are hostile to the central government.

Chinese statesmen, who have the welfare of the country at heart, see the people slipping back into a state of moral and physical degradation worse than they were in before the anti-opium laws were passed. They hope that new laws will be passed making opium exports more a matter of public concern. And they do blame Japan, because they hold that Japan has an object in weakening the people of China and is forcing opium upon the country as the surest and quickest means of that end.—Family Herald.

ROD AND GUN

Readers of Canada's national sportsmen's monthly Rod and Gun in Canada will look forward with interest to the November issue which contains among other interesting stories and articles "Where the Amber River Flows," a story of the north country written by that premier sportsman, Robert G. Hodgson. "Lobstering in Nova Scotia" is the title of Bonnycastle Dale's instructive contribution to this issue. The annual tournament of the Nova Scotia Guide's Association is fully reported and illustrated in two articles. The sportsmen's departments, fishing guns, conservation and kennels are up to their usual high standard. In addition to these interesting stories and departments, A. Bryan Williams, the noted big game hunter of British Columbia gives an interesting account of a big game hunt in the mountains of the Pacific province. REACH & CO.

The H. B. Co. have told you all that they are giving up business this year. It is needless to say that we all will miss them. They had it in their power to be very aggressive or tyrannising with their small competitors. But on the other hand they were civil and courteous. This is important to the merchants and yourselves. It is policy to keep the old reliable stores up to date and able to cater to the increased trade. To do this, however, fresh stock will have to be put in. This is where you, the purchasing public, come on the scene. When the company pull out it means other stores coming in—Jew stores or men who have no sympathy with you and who come for the cash—with Eastern ideas of getting it. Now you can still keep the old merchants in business and enable them to get fresh goods and a larger stock by paying up your bills, even if you have to borrow to do so. These men have trusted you, had faith in you and know the peculiar circumstances many of you were placed in. So by paying them what you owe they can at once re-invest the money buying a larger stock. This is a case in which honesty is the best policy, and you can't be honest when you keep or spend the money instead of paying the merchant what you owe.

A STRIKING COMPARISON

The following editorial comment from the Morning Albertan gives a comparison of the punishments meted out to the late mayor, MacSwiney, of Ireland, and Eugene Debs, of the U.S.:
The charge against MacSwiney, the late mayor of Cork, was high treason.
His offense was plotting against law and order in Ireland, and forming a part of a conspiracy which ended in the slaughter of a number of policemen in the south of Ireland. The Albertan understands the argument used in defense of MacSwiney, but if Britain is not to abandon Ireland and recognize the Irish republic, which it has not done, and not many people in this country suggest that for the good of Britain or Ireland that it should do, then Britain should enforce its own laws, and offenders should be punished.

MacSwiney was given the minimum sentence for such an offense, which is two years in jail.

The Albertan does not propose to enter into an argument about the justice of MacSwiney's sentence. It is interested just now in the supreme indignation of some of the people of the United States, who are pleased to be worried about the alleged injustice.

Compare the fate of MacSwiney and Eugene V. Debs. MacSwiney was found guilty in a regular way of high treason, a serious offense in any country, and was given the minimum punishment.

On the other hand, Eugene V. Debs, in the United States, was not convicted of high treason. He was not convicted of participation in violence. He was simply convicted of expressing an opinion in defiance of special and not too popular war-time legislation—the espionage act. And for such expression the United States judges meted out to Debs the extreme punishment of ten years in prison at hard labor. He is today, and in peace time, serving the sentence, and is due to serve it through many years of peace.

The American people who are worrying about the injustice of the punishment of MacSwiney, guilty of high treason, might consider for a moment the punishment of Debs, for a much less serious offense. The comparison is a striking one.

SOLVING LABOR TROUBLES

When the employer and the employe are earnestly desirous of labor peace, they usually arrive at a definite settlement of the troubles without any serious trouble. This is what happened in Britain. The miners did not want to strike and the government was very much opposed to any interruption in labor. The miners on principle resented the act of the government in breaking a promise made to the laboring people. The government was alarmed at the full meaning of the demands of the men.

But both parties were opposed to labor war. The miners, who are good citizens, and the government, which is much worried by a variety of troubles, both realized the appalling possibilities of any serious labor interruption.
A compromise was made which satisfies both the employer and the employe, and the miners will soon be at work.—Morning Albertan.

OIL PACT WITH FRANCE

The terms of the agreement between the French and British governments in regard to oil interests in Rumania, Mesopotamia, territories of the old Russian empire, Galicia, and the French and British Crown colonies, provide in the main for the full protection of the nationals of both countries in exploiting the different oil fields for the division of interests in the supplies obtained, and for the permanent British control of the Mesopotamian oil supplies.

In regard to Rumania, both governments agree to support their respective nationals in any common negotiations entered into with the Rumanian government for the acquisition of oil concessions which have been sequestered.

The British government has undertaken to give the French government or its nominee, 25 per cent. of the net output of crude oil at current market rates, which may be secured from the Mesopotamian oil fields.

The British government is to support arrangements by which the French government can procure from the Anglo-Persian Oil Company supplies of oil which may be piped from Persia to the Mediterranean through any pipe line constructed through French-mandated territory and in regard to which France may give special facilities up to the extent of 25 per cent.
of the piped oil.

The French government also agree to allow two separate pipe lines and railways necessary for the transport of oil through its territories in Mesopotamia and Persia to any ports or the eastern Mediterranean without any wayleaves or royalty.

Facilities will be given by the French for any Anglo-French company or groups of companies to operate in the French colonies, such groups containing at least 67 per cent. French interests.—Family Herald.

HIS CONCLUSION

Dr. Guest, joint secretary of the British Labor delegation to Soviet Russia, is writing a series of special articles to the London Times, stating his observations and conclusions respecting the Bolshevik regime in the land of the assassinated czar. The British Labor delegation went to Russia with an open mind. Its members were favorably disposed. That is to say, they were willing to see all the good there might be in the Soviet regime for the reason that they were looking for better conditions in their own land. This makes the conclusions of the secretary of the delegation the more interesting. Here they are:

"Soviet Russia is ruled in fact by the so-called 'political five' (Lenin, Trotzky, Stalin, Kameny and Kristinsky); its decision is absolutely final. This 'five,' hampered neither by the control of any action of independent democratic organization nor by criticism of free press or free word, are indeed omnipotent, but such revolutionary absolute power shares the general sad fate of every absolute power. Omnipotent as far as the masses are concerned, omnipotent with respect to the workmen or peasant as well as any bourgeoisie, it is impotent as far as bureaucracy goes, and again particularly its military and police services, on which the 'five' are forced to rely for the fulfilment of its dictatorship.
None of the best intentions of the men in power can be here of any avail.

"Absolute power at the top automatically creates absolute power of the worst kind at the bottom. And one must acknowledge that all kinds of arbitrariness, violence, bribery, and simple robbery bloom in Soviet Russia. Desperate efforts of separate groups of honest true Communists are drowned in this endless sea of militaristic and police corruption.
Such is, in short, the real aspect of the theory and practice of the Soviet system. . . . Whether the tendency towards concentration of power will go further still, only the future can say. We are, at any rate a long way off from the 'Bourgeois superstition' of liberty, constitutional democracy and workers' control.
How near we are to a Napoleonic era is a matter of speculation. . . ."

ECHOES FROM THE REFERENDUM

(Contributed.)

"Where We Stand Now." The above was the topic of the Rev. W. A. Lewis in the Methodist church on Sunday evening. The speaker said: "The very term Referendum, marks a stage of progress in the political life of our country, for it means that questions of state are referred to the people for the expression of their opinion."

"You can trust the people, when the aggregate of the Divine, that finds a spark somewhere in every man is gathered into a flame of public opinion, it is then true Vox populi, Vox Dei."

"Untrammelled public opinion is a fairly safe guide to statesmanship."

"The democracy of business is not yet the rule of the people. There are Czars that do not wear crowns, and Russia today is under the autocracy of a Lenin and a Trotsky, but I have no fear that the people of Russia will ultimately evolve a divinely guided country."

"The experience of last Monday demonstrates the fitness of women to use the ballot."

"All the evils that were prophesied ten years ago, if women were allowed the ballot, do not seem likely to materialize. I took a woman to the polls, she voted, and was home in just seven minutes."

"I know of no one who has a better right to say what kind of a country her boy shall grow up in, than the mother. Although it must not be overlooked that the prohibition law of 1915 was put on the Statute books by the vote of the men alone. In spite of many Croakers we may take pride in the fact that Canada is not a drunken country. You may travel from one side of the Dominion to the other and you will see very few drunk men. At our fairs, and in other places where large crowds are gathered, the intoxicated man is conspicuous by his absence. Macleod, in spite of the wet vote, is not a drunken town."

How many men do you know in Macleod who go home night after night intoxicated? How many homes are there in town that are impoverished by strong drink? I don't know one. The old recitations of by-gone days that described the home-coming of the drunken father are now obsolete.

Let no one persuade you that things are worse than they used to be. There are old-timers in this congregation that could name scores of men in the old days that were never sober, and many of them were young men too.

There were many people that voted "wet" on Monday who are prohibitionists in sentiment, but voted as they did to make their protest against the lax enforcement of the law—as it now stands. But let me point out to that we should always be guided by a principle, not by a method. some one has said:

"Methods there are many, Principles are few, Methods often fail me, Principles never do."

The whiskey business for beverages is wrong in principle. It traffics for gain on the weakness of men. It is not surprising that some honest methods of combatting the evil should fail.

Government control will never be sanctioned by the mass of the electorate because it places the government in the whiskey business and consequently the electorate in the business also, and the citizens of Canada will never consent, on principle, to a partnership in the nefarious business. Set the principle that guides us like a star be: a clear strong protest against any method that makes it legal right to sell to any man, that which preys upon his weakness, or that permits one man, or government, to make gain out of another's misfortune, namely, his appetite for drink.

Where do we stand now? Just here. The interested electors of Alberta by a majority of 10,000 or thereabouts, have called upon premier Stewart to fulfil his promise of a bone-dry province. We are not disappointed with the majority, we are proud of it. The partisan dailies and some of the politicians are trying to belittle it but it speaks with no uncertain sound.

Any government that had such a mandate from the people on any other policy would not question its strength for a moment. As to the silent vote, that is the people who did not cast their ballot, they were probably "dry," and were people who were satisfied with the favorable temperance conditions in nearly every part of the province, and saw the need for a change. Without hesitation I would claim the silent vote for the "drys."

At any rate, the people have spoken, and no government dare disregard the voice of the people.

It is often stated that the labor unrest of today is due to the depriving of the workman of his drink.

Drumheller is perhaps the largest labor center in Alberta, and last Monday the labor men of Drumheller, by quite a large majority said, "we are in favor of a bone-dry Alberta." This removes the stigma old slander from our labor men. The vote throughout the Crow's Nest Pass was surprising, for the great number of dry votes. That is surprising in the light of the old slander on the labor men.

One day a colored boy got off the train in one of the American cities and was trudging away carrying a heavy suit-case, and a gentleman stepped up to him and said: "Can I help you my boy," and the help was gladly accepted. That boy was Booker T. Washington, the Moses of the colored people of the South. The man was Edward Everett Hale, and when the boy thanked him Edward Everett Hale said: "my boy, wherever you go through life don't forget to lend the world a hand."

Whatever our mistakes may have been in the past, however much we may differ as to methods of doing good, may our own policy be to "lend the world a hand."

There was no apparent means of escape. The room had only a window and a door. Both were securely bolted from the outside. Yet the Unknown Quantity got away. How? See "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," at the Empress Monday and Tuesday.

be secured.

It is evident that there will be a demand throughout the fall. Many farmers during the past two years have sold entirely out of their breeding stock of sows and now that grain has reduced somewhat in price, some of these men are anxious to again become established in the business; but find no local supply from which to secure a start. The matter was discussed by the Livestock Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, the markets representative of the Dominion government and with the commission firms at the Edmonton and Calgary stock yards. It was learned that a considerable number of good brood sows are now passing through the stock yards and are being bought by the packers for slaughter.

Arrangements have been made with the Live Stock exchanges at these yards to fill orders for brood sows. The Department will place a representative in the yards to see that the farmers' interests are looked after. Farmers are advised to procure sows from local shippers if possible, which will save freight to and from the central yards. Those wishing to purchase from the stock yards should communicate with the secretary of the Edmonton Live Stock Exchange, Ltd.

That Never Fails

How the Money was Lost

"You see I had only a few thousand dollars left after the estate was settled—" and my brother borrowed some to help him along; of course that went and then—

I simply had to help father with his business, he was so worried—and I thought it best to invest something in real estate at once. Well, that failed—and, really, if it were not for the monthly income cheque from the Canada Life I don't know how I should be getting along now."

It is all so simple and effective!

Just a few dollars set aside regularly, and the Canada Life will guarantee to your home a continuous monthly income.

What a relief to know that no matter what may happen, the monthly cheque that never fails, issued regularly by the Canada Life, will come to your home!

Your present Life Insurance will no doubt "clear the mortgage," pay off the obligations of your estate, and leave something for your family, but

Consider This

In addition to a "lump sum" of money, you should provide a definite income that cannot fail.

A weekly or monthly income is the natural thing for most people.

A woman can keep a family together on even a small income, provided it is regular.

Financial problems should not be thrust upon a woman who is not used to business deals.

The hands of unscrupulous men are always outstretched for money held by the unwary.

The Monthly Income Plan

You will be surprised to learn what a reasonable proposition can be made to you; how only a few dollars saved and set aside from your regular earnings can be multiplied into a substantial income for your Beneficiary.

"MY VOYAGE TO CANADA"

The following is an account by a local young lady, Miss Agnes O. Robb, of her trip from Glasgow to Macleod, written by request of her Glasgow school teacher:

We left Princess dock, Glasgow, on board the S. S. Saturnia, the date being Friday, September 10th, 1920. The pier was crowded with people who gave us a hearty send-off. We left the pier about 11 o'clock and when sailing down the Clyde all the places we came to, such as Lumbartonshire and Renfrewshire, the people at the shipyards waved their hands to us. What happened to us on our voyage is as follows:

1st day, Friday 10th.—About 1 o'clock the bell rang for lunch. We went down and had lunch and when we were finished we came up on deck. I sat down (to write the story I am now writing) and looked at the lovely scenery as we passed. The further we sailed down the Clyde the warmer it got and I said to mother, "If it is like this just now, what will it be like when we reach Montreal." A little while after lunch we passed Helensburgh, Greenock and Kilcraggan. When we reached Kilcraggan the boat changed its course a little to take the passengers off the tender that came from Greenock. After the tender had gone we took a walk around the deck. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon it began to get cold again and quite a few people were walking around to keep their feet warm. Soon the dinner bell rang (5 o'clock) but there were two sittings, 1st and 2nd. We were at the second one, so had to wait until a quarter to six. As soon as tea was over it began to get rough, for we were nearing the Irish Sea. Several of the people began to get sick but I managed to keep up. When 9 o'clock came we went down to the stateroom to get to bed.

Saturday, 11th.—I was not up all day Saturday as I was sick. So I won't be able to tell anything except that the steward made our beds and brought us something to drink; but we had nothing to eat all day, nor were we out of our beds.

Sunday, 12th.—I got up on Sunday afternoon, but missed seeing a whale and porpoise. The whale was about ten feet long, but it was dead, it had a large cut in its side and it was floating on its back. The porpoise was a brown and white color, but it was quite a ways from the ship and could not be made out very plainly.

Monday, 13th.—On Monday I had something to eat for the first time, not at breakfast, but lunch. It just went out the same as the other day's had done.

Tuesday, 14th.—When I woke up on Tuesday the boat was heaving something awful and I could hardly stand on my feet. We went up on deck about 6 o'clock and it was awfully cold. At 7:20 the first bell rang and 7:45 the second bell rang. After breakfast we had some fun on deck. At 12 the dinner bell rang and we all went to dinner. At 2 there was a concert in the music room and no one could hardly get a seat about half past one as they were all taken by then. Tuesday night was the very same as Monday night.

Wednesday, 15th.—When we woke up on Wednesday it was a little calmer and we were to have sports, but later on in the day it got rough again and they were cancelled. I forgot to say that on Tuesday night there was a whistle drive, and on Wednesday afternoon the prizes were presented. The boys prize was two large boxes of chocolates, the girl's prize was a pipe, a shaving brush and a stick of soap, and the booby prize was a big box, and inside was a pig's leg wrapped in paper, on top of the box Lunch Box was written, it was won by a Rumanian.

Thursday, 16th.—On Thursday morning we were in the ice region.

The fog was very thick and every now and then we were given a fright by the fog-horn blowing. On Wednesday afternoon there was an examination, every one had to show their vaccinated arm. Those who weren't done had to be at 1 o'clock on Thursday morning.

Thursday, 16th.—When Thursday came everybody was getting ready for it, and the doctor had all his stuff in the music room. As soon as I was 11 o'clock you could see a crowd of people rushing toward the music room, where the vaccination had to be done. My little sister had to be done and she was all shaking when it came her turn. She was near the end and saw everybody getting his or her's done. Lunch bell rang as usual and we all went down for it. After dinner we went up to the music room to have some fun at the piano. Usually about five minutes before the lunch bell rings the stewards come up to the pantry (we were always playing around here) and sit on a bench which is for that purpose, until their names are called for the different dishes they have to take down. This is when we have the most fun, also when they come up five or ten minutes before the second call. During the afternoon there were sports. I did not run as the night before I fell on the deck and made a hole in my elbow. It was very sore so I decided not to run. After the sports the dinner bell rang. We went up on deck after dinner and walked around till it was time to go to bed.

Friday, 17th.—On Friday the finals were to have been run for the races but it was too wet, so the prizes were given out. Everyone was to receive a prize whether they ran or not. I got a Maple leaf brooch with R.M.S. Saturnia on it, so did my second sister. There were also boxes of chocolates and toffees and silk handkerchiefs. They went round with the hat to everyone on our deck and they received 9 pounds, 10 shillings, so that helped them to buy the prizes Friday just passed out the same as the other days.

Saturday, 18th.—On Saturday we saw more land than on Friday. We were so excited to see it again that we ran up half dressed. In the Straits of Belle Isle we saw about seven ice bergs. They weren't as large as those we saw when going to Scotland. They had heard from someone that we would not reach Quebec before Wednesday coming, but one of the stewards said that they were making fun of us. We heard from the Captain, (through our table steward,) that we would land on Monday night and get off on Tuesday morning. Then the dinner bell rang and it was time to go down. At night we had an official concert. Supper, which consisted of coffee, biscuits and cheese, was set earlier than usual to get the concert started. It was started at about 7.15 and finished about 11 o'clock. During that time the artists helped to cheer us up. There were songs, people impersonating and recitations. We went up to get a mouthful of fresh air after it was finished, then we went down to bed.

Sunday, 19th.—When we woke up on Sunday we found it to be a little cold, but we got out on deck all the same and had a walk round to freshen ourselves up and give us a good appetite for breakfast. We had services during the day, one in the morning and Sunday school in the afternoon and church service at night. Sunday isn't a day for doing anything so I have nothing else to say about it, unless that we went to bed earlier than usual.

Monday, 20th.—I got up very early this morning in order to finish my essay. We were nearing Father Point and at 11.10 the pilot came on in a tender from Father Point. I was sitting writing when the steward came to the table and put on the cloth, I had to stop then, but after he got it on I started again, but I was interrupted again when he came to set it for dinner, so I had to stop writing my essay till after dinner. After dinner I ran up to the music room to get a seat before they were all taken. When we got up, there the chef was standing. He was on the stage for thirty years and we had some fun. There was a little girl at the piano who was only six years of age, but she played from ear.

Today we were all very cheery because we knew we would get off tomorrow. Most people were going to Ontario and places in the East. A few were going to Saskatchewan and Alberta. We had four days in the train to go but we were glad. We had enjoyed our journey and had made a lot of friends on board ship. Today nearly everyone were exchanging addresses. I got two or three from friends I had made during the trip. I first learned today how many people were on board. There were 256 cabin passengers and 1,000 steerage.

Tuesday, 21st.—Today we all woke up full of excitement. We were to land (as on Monday night at 12.30 we came into the port of Quebec.) Breakfast was at 6 and 6.30, so we had to get up pretty early. We were off the ship by 8 o'clock and we were all so glad to be on land again. We got a train at 5.30 so we had quite a long time to wait. When we got on our train at 10.30 to take us to the station further on where we were to get our train at 5.30, we found it went to another station and was joined onto the 5.30 express. When we arrived at the other station, the first thing we did was to go to a cafe, for there was no dinner on the train, and we had five and a half hours to wait for the 5.30 express and get dinner. After we were finished mother bought a basketful of mixed fruit for us to eat on the train. At 6.30 the train went off. The next day, Wednesday, the 22nd, we came in to Cochrane where we had to change for Winnipeg. On our way to Cochrane, there was a stabbing incident in our train which caused very much excitement in the pullman cars. There were a lot of French Canadians travelling colonist, 3rd class, and as the train slowed down at a certain station a French Canadian jumped on the train and tried to open the pullman door, 1st class. The others tried to stop him, (as we were kept back from the F.C's, and the door was locked,) but he paid no attention. So knives were drawn and he got a gash in his side about ten inches in length. We changed at Cochrane after we had something to eat.

The next day, Thursday, 23rd, we arrived in Winnipeg and changed there from the C.N.R. to the C.P.R. for Macleod. We arrived in Macleod on Saturday. So we were seven days from Quebec to Macleod and from Glasgow to Quebec we were twelve days, (as we were held up four days for fog and icebergs,) so that made sixteen days altogether. On the way we saw 12 icebergs.

MONSTER DREDGER FOR GOLD DIGGING

When the pioneers flocked to California in 1848 to gather her virgin gold they were armed with pick, a shovel and a pan.

With these simple instruments they strained out the sands of the rivers and creeks and gradually by hard toll garnered fortunes in gold nuggets.

But today the art of wrestling gold from the waters and earth has become a complex and appalling thing. Vast amounts are now spent before as much as a cubic foot of gravel has been touched, and the investors count upon their money being returned at least tenfold.

They have lessened the chance of mistakes by elaborate and careful surveys and tests of the ground which they intend to force to disgorge its hidden treasures.

And when these tests are favorable they proceed to strip the trees and brush from the face of nature and of the gold finding monsters which prepare it for the coming slaughter the brain of man has conceived and executed.

Today as in bygone years placer mining is perhaps the most sure and profitable form of mining. But from the pan, shaken back and forth by the weary muscles of one miner, up through the various forms of "cradles" evolved to handle greater and greater quantities of gravel at a time, the modern gold dredger has emerged a mechanical giant. It is rather strange to see that, although the size of the machine has increased ten thousand fold, the principles of operation of the pan and the cradle and the dredger are virtually the same.

Largest Gold Dredger in the World The pinnacle of construction in this line is the largest gold dredger in the world, owned and operated by the Estabrook Dredging Company, at Trinity Centre, Cal., on the North Fork of the Trinity river, in the midst of beautiful mountains, termed by those who have seen them the Trinity Alps, and thirty miles from the nearest railroad station. This monster boat is but the amplification of the old pan and cradle idea. With the aid of modern machinery and electricity this dredge digs and disposes of from 400,000 to 450,000 cubic yards of dirt and gravel, rocks and snail bolders, every month. What is taken out in gold dust and nuggets is a secret jealously guarded by the officers of the company.

More than a million board feet of lumber were used to construct this boat, which is now about two years old. It floats in a pond of its own making, and of varying depth, according to the distance of bed rock from the surface. The hull of the dredge is 152 feet long, 68 feet wide and 13 feet deep, with a superstructure the size of a hotel.

The front end, from which the digging is done, carries the "bow gantry." The "stern gantry" is the discharging end of the boat. The bow gantry supports and regulates the up and down and sideway movements of the great bucket ladder or digging apparatus, composed of eighty-three great buckets made of manganese steel, each with a capacity of 20 cubic feet and weighing 5,650 pounds, without the connecting pins, which weigh 810 pounds apiece and are 7 5/8 inches in diameter. The entire bucket ladder weighs 268 tons and is capable of digging to a depth of 45 feet. The chain of buckets is 125 feet long and continuous, as in all types of so-called "clamshell dredgers."

Scraping the Bedrock

These great buckets gouge out the earth before them, and scrape the bedrock clean of all the gold, which, because it is heavier than any of the native rock, sinks to the bottom, or until stopped by a solid layer of bedrock. Then the buckets carry the dirt and gold back into the interior of the boat, drop their burden into the hopper with a sloping bottom made of heavy steel castings, and from this the dirt and rocks and gold pass into a revolving screen or drum, which is 54 feet long and 9 feet in diameter, and whose manganese steel plates are perforated with holes.

The smaller stones and gravel and silt, along with the gold, are sluiced through these holes by a stream of water from a pipe 10 inches in diameter and under heavy pressure. The large stones and heavy gravel are caught on to a travelling belt 44 inches wide, at the stern of the boat, and carried out on what is called the "tailing stacker" or "stacker ladder."

This stacker is 140 feet long and at the end is a dumper, which evicts all the worthless material carried up on the belt, piling it up in great mounds of naked stone, which cover the ground for acres and acres, and even for miles—the product of the old dredger which was sunk three or four years ago, and which had worked continuously for over fifteen years. This great dredger was built to take the place of the other much smaller one.

Even Keel Maintained

Buoys tanks are placed in the hull at either side of the stern to balance the dredge when the stacker swings to either side, for it has a sideways motion of 15 degrees. This keeps the boat steady, and even in stormy weather an amazingly even keel is maintained.

The dirt and small gravel carrying the gold, which falls through the revolving screen, is sluiced into the gold saving tables, which are the single deck type, built of wood and arranged in such a way that an area of 4,400 square feet is covered. In the process of travelling over these tables the heavier sand and gold are caught in the riffles placed across them, while the lighter dirt and gravel are washed on and out at the stern end of the boat into the pond which floats the dredger.

The dredger is operated night and day and all the year round, as the climate is usually mild enough, except for an occasional heavy winter, when the snow will pile up six or eight feet on the level. But in the winter months the stacker ladder is enclosed in canvas and steam heated to keep it from freezing, and as all the other machinery generates its own heat protection the boat is enabled to work as usual. The ground does not get frozen as it does in colder climates.

Making a "Clean-Up"

Every once in a while the water power is turned off and a "clean-up" is made by the trusted officers of the company. This means that the gold saving tables are gone over carefully and every particle of dust or nuggets removed before operations are continued.

Over 1,500 horse power is fed to the fourteen different electric motors which run the various machines necessary to the operation of the boat, and the power is brought over the mountains by high power lines from mountain stream power plants and taken on board at 2,300 volts through a special armored cable. The cost of construction of the dredger is estimated at between $500,000 and $750,000.

To prevent having to shut down the dredge when the lower tumbler bearings need greasing a lower force pump has been installed, which is situated and controlled from the winch room. Another new feature in dredge construction is a freight elevator for handling heavy supplies and parts between the upper and lower decks.

Another big dredger, built entirely of steel, is being operated by another company—the Pacific Gold Dredging and Mining Company—about three miles above Trinity Centre. But although this is a twin of the Yuba River boat, the two are considered the largest steel boats operating, the big wooden boat at Trinity Centre is still the champion when it comes to size and production.—Family Herald.

THE SCREEN'S FINEST MYSTERY PICTURE

One of the most fascinating detective stories ever put upon the cinema screen is "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," an Emil Chautard production based upon the novel by Gaston Leroux. It will be seen at the Empress on Monday and Tuesday.

The mystery in the story of this Realart picture takes place almost before the eyes of the auditors. The daughter of Professor Stangerson shrieks for help at midnight, and when the door to her room is opened, the criminal cannot be found and the manner of his impossible escape cannot be understood. The basis is genuinely confusing. I the process of ascertaining the identity of the criminal, a second crime, robbery, is discovered and a murder committed, until finally the newspaper reporter, at variance with the theories of a famous detective, brings the culprit to justice.

Some fine photographic work has been done in this film which is a Realart picture. William S. Walcott as the Professor, Ethel Gray Terry as his daughter, Edmund Elton as her fiancé, George Cowie as the detective and Lorin Raker as the newspaper sleuth, are the principle players in the film. The balance of the large company, including many well-known players, is capable.
